RAZOR CLASPED IN HER HANDS

Coroner's Inquest Will Not Be Necessary,
Officials Say

(Associated Press)

MANGUM, Okla., Sept. 29—After an informal investigation into the deaths of five members of the family
J. E. Melton farmer, living five miles southeast of here, county authorities today placed responsibility for the killing upon Mrs. Melton one of the dead, and declared a coroner's inquest unnecessary.

Melton, returning late Saturday night from Mangum, where he says he had taken a shotgun for safekeeping discovered the bodies of his four children, ranging in age from 11 years
to 18 months, and that of his wife, lying in a row in one room, their throats all slashed with a razor.

The razor was clasped in Mrs. Melton's hands, officials said.

Melton said his wife for sometime had been suffering from hallucinations.

EDWARDS REMAINS AS CLASS TEACHER

Popular Pastor Will Abide By Decision
Of the Members

The Y. M. C. A. Bible class meeting of Sunday morning was well attended with the "Blues" trailing closely behind the victorious "Whites" only five more of the last named division
being present than of the first named.

Rev. Noble R. Edwards' statement that he would abide by the unanimous vote of the class and remain its teacher, altho he will be out of the Twin Cities at Kimberly Heights at college
during the week days of this winter,
was received with vigorous cheering.

Last week Rev. Edwards, who has been teaching the class since its organization, tendered his resignation,
on the ground that he would be too busy with his studies and with serving as pastor for the First Christian church here, to continue as the teacher, but since the class refused to accept his resignation, he reconsidered
his decision.

Rev. Edwards stated Sunday morning that he found that his college studies would be in the same Bible chapters to be studied by the Association Bible class. The popular minister left Sunday night for his school work,
at Kimberly Heights which he will do in connection with his five year call as pastor of the First Christian church.

Horace Layman, Sunday School
evangelist of the Presbyterian church,
J. S. A. for North Alabama, was asked to speak for a few minutes prior to the lesson address by Rev. Edwards.
Mr. Layman asked the men to be ready to teach Bible classes in the country districts when called for.

At the business session of the class,
presided over by C. W. Matthews, some money was ordered paid to a needy family.

The social committee was called by its chairman, C. J. Randolph, to meet at the Y. M. C. A. this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The usual song service led by C. L. Shook with Miss Mary Carden at the piano preceded the teaching of the Sunday school lesson.

SAILOR RESCUED BY POLICE FROM MOB

Accused Of Attacking Girl Passenger In
Her Stateroom

(Associated Press)

HOBOKEN, N. J., Sept. 29—A squad of police today rescued Christopher Dunne, aged 31, a sailor, from passengers and members of the crew of the liner George Washington, who made threats of lynching after he had broken into a stateroom and attacked a young woman as she slept.

Dunne, the police reported, came on board from shore leave in an intoxicated condition and nearly succeeded in hanging the young woman with a rope which he had wound around her neck.

Answering her screams, passengers and members of the crew forced an entrance to the locked cabin. The police fired a couple of shots in the air
on the dock to keep the crowds back after they had taken Dunne in charge.

TO PRESENT PLAN

A special feature of the meeting on Wednesday, October 1 of the local Mother's Club to be held in the west room of the R. R. Y. M. C. A. will be a formal presentation of plans for a kindergarten to be opened on Monday October 6 it was stated today by a member of the Mother's Club.

Aged Bridegroom Is Spirited Away On Wedding's Eve

(Associated Press)

RENO, Nev., Sept. 29—Dragged screaming, from the church as he prepared to go to the altar for a wedding ceremony, Francis A.
Robb, 84, wealthy Reno property owner, was whisked away in an automobile late last night.

Two sons, Ray and Edward Robb are being sought, according to the police. The elder Robb was to have been married to Mrs. Margaret Nickolson, aged 60.

The best man and a Catholic clergyman witnessed the alleged kidnapping and passersby stood in amazement as the old man called vainly for help. Robb, a contractor, has been a resident of Reno
for years.

TRAINING SCHOOL BEGINS SESSIONS AT LOCAL CHURCH

Preliminary Meeting Is Largely Attended
By the Workers

FIRST LESSONS GIVEN TONIGHT

Members Of Faculty
To Remain Here
Entire Week

Following their preliminary meeting at the Central Methodist church Sunday afternoon and evening the student of the Decatur District Standard Training school will begin their regular school work this evening at the Central Methodist church.

It is expected that the teachers will assign the lessons this evening following general statements to the students as to the scope and purpose of the school.

About seventy five have signed for the several courses of the school from all parts of the Decatur district, which includes Morgan and the adjoining counties. Most of the seventy five students were at the church Sunday and the entire number will be ready for work this evening, said Dr. R. M.
McGlathery, the chairman of the publicity committee.

It was stated except the teachers the members of the school plan to remain at their homes making trips daily to the Twin Cities. The majority of the students are from Athens, Trinity, Hartselle and Albany and Decatur.

The North Alabama conference educational director, Rev. W. M. McDonald, will be associated with Dr. Walter P. McGlawn, presiding elder of the Decatur district, in the general direction of the school. Rev. McDonald and the following teachers will remain in the Twin Cities until the close of the school at the last of this week: Miss Marie Parham, of Nashville; Miss Nannie Baker of Mobile; Dr. S. T.
Slaton of Birmingham and Dr. W. G.
Henry of Atlanta.

Rev. McDonald will preside at the opening session, and he and the four teachers are expected to address the students, following which the reading courses will be assigned.

First School Meeting Sunday

The first general meeting of the students of the school was held at three o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Central Methodist church and with the students' hundreds of others met.
The principal address was by Dr.
Samuel A. Steel pastor of the First Methodist church who chose as his subject "Character Building."

The meeting was opened by Dr.
James D. Hunter, who presided until the introduction of Rev. McDonald, in the absence of Dr. W. P. Mc-Glawn, who was called away on account of the illness, of a neighbor.

After expressing his appreciation for the school having met at his church and following hearty words of welcome, Dr. Hunter presented Rev.
McDonald. A number of announcements were made, and some of the students inspected the class rooms
that are to be used this week.

Davis Preparing Final Offensive

(Associated Press)

LOCUST VALLEY, N. Y., Sept. 29—
John W. Davis began preparation here today for the last big offensive in his campaign.

The offensive will cover three general fields, the middle west, the east and several of the border states. It will be inaugurated next Wednesday in Maryland with addresses at Frederick and Baltimore and will end with a rally in New York City on the night of November 1.

MA FERGUESON IS WINNER IN INITIAL ROUND IN COURTS

Injunction to Keep Her Name Off Ballot Is Refused by Judge

WOMAN WINS ON ALL LAW POINTS

Common Law Principle
Held to Be Obsolete
By the Jurist

(Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 29—Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson today won the first step in the court fight to have her disqualification as democratic nominee for governor of Texas.

An injunction to keep her name off
the ballot was refused by Judge George C. Calhoun in fifty third district court.

The court held that Mrs. Ferguson is qualified in every way to hold the office and that the so-called common law disability against women in office does not apply.

He held with Mrs. Ferguson on all law points. He said first that the plaintiff had power to bring the suit
under the statute and that the court had jurisdiction, but on all other questions Mrs. Ferguson won.

The old common law principles, on which the plaintiff, Charles M. Dickson, of San Antonio, relied were said
by the judge to be obsolete in this country and he could find no inhibition in either the Texas constitution or the statutes of this state which denied the women the right to hold office.

Girl Is Injured In An Auto Accident

Evelyn Brown, aged three years,
little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, Fifth avenue, South Albany is in a serious condition at the Benevolent hospital, following an automobile accident which occurred Saturday night two miles south of the Twin Cities on the Hartselle pike.

Others were hurt at the same time,
but only the little girl is believed to be seriously injured.

Her skull was fractured in a very serious manner, her physician Dr. A.
M. Roan stated.

The ill fated car was driven by Allen Brown, a relative of the little girl it is said and that in an effort to avoid another vehicle, the driver caused his machine to overturn. Immediately following the accident the little girl was taken to the hospital. A number of people were in the car when it turned over.

PREACHER CRITICIZES DARROW VIEW OF MARRIAGE CONTRAST

Dr. Steel Reads Statement Of Attorney to Members Of Congregation

"The excuses made by Attorney
Clarence Darrow for the crime of Hight in poisoning his wife so that he could marry again, are the very essence of lawlessness," said Dr. S. A.
Steel, Sunday night, speaking from his pulpit on the "Mistakes of Darrow."

"We cannot concede or yield to any such a doctrine as Darrow preaches in defending Hight. Its acceptance would mean the destruction of the home, an institution set up by God,
long before a church was established,"
continued the preacher.

Dr. Steel had read the statement to his congregation in which the Chicago lawyer, said that the restraints of the marriage laws and the protests of society against Hight taking his real soul mate had driven him to desperation.

Dr. Steel took as his text, "Hear

LOVE FOR MINISTER TURNS TO ASHES.

MRS. ELSIE SWEETIN

This photograph of Mrs. Elsie Sweetin, of Ina, Ill., was taken in her cell at Salem, Ill., where she was taken for safe keeping after confessing she murdered her husband, Wilford Sweetin, with arsenic at the same time Rev. Lawrence M. Hight killed his wife by the same means, so they might be free to love each other. Her love for the pastor-murderer has turned to ashes since she found he was not the superman she deemed him. She divides her time in her cell between reading and weeping.

'CITIZENSHIP' IS ADDRESS SUBJECT

Dr. Davison Heard By Christian Council In Sunday Meet

The Laymen's Christian Council of the Twin Cities met in regular session
at the East Albany Baptist church Sunday afternoon and at adjournment
the invitation of the Southside Baptist church to meet there next month was accepted.

Under unfinished business the following committee was named to select department chairmen: Edward Spain,
E. E. Speer and Carlisle Buck.

The council was presided over by W. L. Hatchett. John F. Lovin, the secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting after which he excused himself to meet an engagement and Carlisle Buck acted as secretary.

The devotional exercises were conducted by George W. Bibby, who called on John F. Lovin to lead the opening prayer.

The principal address was delivered by Dr. C. C. Davison on "Citizenship."
The speaker showed among other things that citizens are just as much sworn to uphold the constitution as police officials and other office holders.

COST OF CRIME AT ITS HIGHEST POINT

Elimination Of Politics
From All Police
Affairs Asked

(Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Sept. 29—The cost of crime in the United States has reached its highest point as much as the annual budget of the nation, which was more than three and one half billion of dollars, according to a report which has been prepared by the protective committee of the American Bankers Association.

Elimination of politics from police affairs will be urged by the committee and speakers and creation of state police in those states without them will be recommended.

Forgeries, according to insurance estimates, included in the report, may reach $100,000,000 by 1924, though the net cost not covered by insurance
probably will not be above $100,000.
Hold-ups have nearly doubled, according to the report, which contains a warning to banks, not members of the association, and showing that since the protective department was organized, non-member banks have been the victims of 2,500 burglaries with a loss of about $5,000,000 while member banks have had 2,500 burglaries, with a million dollar loss.

Pleads Guilty To Feathering Girl

(Associated Press)

FREDERICK, Md., Sept. 29—Mrs.
Mary Shank pleaded guilty before
Chief Justice Urrar and Associate Justice Peter in circuit court today to an indictment, charging her with tarring and feathering Dorothy Grandon, young Martinsburg, W. Va., girl at Myersville, near here, last July.

Mrs. Shank admitted applying the tar and feathers to Miss Grandon,
who, she alleged, had been tampering with affections of her husband, Lloyd Shank.

Evidence in the remaining 19 cases will be heard by the court before the woman is sentenced.

BOAT BROUGHT HERE

The J. Luther Troxell, Tennessee river boat, has just been brought to port. The Troxell had been "wedged" for some time at Angle Dam,
near Nancy Reece, on the Tennessee river, near the Twin Cities. The boat had been out of commission owing to the accident at Angle Dam.

BUSINESS RECEIVES A DECIDED IMPETUS AS PAYROLL GROWS

SAFETY RECORD IS BEING MADE

Master Mechanic Here
Elated Over Fine
Showing

With the resumption of full time
operations at the Louisville and Nashville Railroad shops, where approximately 1800 men are employed, repairing engines, building freight cars
and repairing freight and passenger cars, business in the Twin Cities has received a distinct impetus all along the line. Not until the last few days have the engine repair forces of the shops been on full time, but for several weeks the car workers have been busy six days in the week. The resumption of full time activities at the shops followed the usual summer time
irregular program of work.

In speaking of the prospects for continued full time schedules for the local shops, C. W. Matthews, Master Mechanic, stated that nothing had developed to indicate other plans than for the regular six day winter activities, made necessary by increased traffic on the road and the need of repairs for the increased number of engines.

Mr. Matthews stated that current reports, to the effect that some engines from the north on the Louisville and Nashville system would in the future be coaled here but not repaired here, had not reached him. The current report stated that some passenger trains would be taken from Nashville to Montgomery, without a change of crew or engines, just as in the west the same engine takes a train much longer distances than is usually the case in the South.

Mr. Matthews denied knowledge of any special efforts to modernize the local Louisville and Nashville coal chute, as some reports have stated of late. He said that following the burning of the south end of the coaling trestle near the shops several months ago, the damage done by the flames had been repaired.

Speaks of Absorbing Shop Topic

"One thing we all know about at the shops," said Mr. Matthews, "is the wonderful record the men are making for 'safety first.' We bid fair to establish not only a system new high record against accidents, but if the men
keep on as they have in August, September and October, we will hang up a national record for 'safety first.'
All remember the 100 per cent acci-dentless month we passed through last April and the big system celebration held at the Y. M. C. A. early in May.

"To date we have not had an accident for nearly 90 days. If we pass through October without an accident
we will have worked 93 days accident-less at the shops. It is doubtful if such a record as that has ever been made by such a large company of railroad workers. At any rate, the local shopmen have set up a mark for their fellow shopmen on the Louisville and Nashville system to shoot at."

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924, and WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"Proposed Amendment No. 290. Mobile County may become indebted and may issue bonds for the construction or improvement of concrete or better than concrete surfaced public roads, and concrete or better than concrete public bridges in said county, and for the construction of bridges and roadways necessary to provide a public road for vehicular travel between the highlands of Mobile and Baldwin Counties, in an amount not to exceed six and one-half per centum of the assessed value of the property situated in Mobile County. To pay said indebtedness and the interest thereon, Mobile County may levy and collect an annual tax on said property not to exceed one-half of one per centum of said value. The indebtedness, the bonds and the tax authorized hereby shall be in addition to those authorized by the Constitution of Alabama prior to the adoption of this amendment. But no such additional indebtedness shall be created, and no such additional bonds shall be issued, and no such additional tax shall be levied, until such improvement or construction proposed to be built thereby, its approximate location, estimated cost and time of completion, and the amount of the proposed increase, shall have been determined upon and made public by the Board of Revenue and Road Commissioners of Mobile County, and the proposed increase of indebtedness or issue of bonds or thereof shall have been first authorized by a majority vote by ballot of the qualified voters of Mobile County voting upon such proposition."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-Four.

Central Announces Heavy Grind; Decatur Opens Next Friday

Coach Webb's charges will have plenty of formidable opposition this season from the looks of the schedule as issued from Central headquarters this morning for the first time. The schedule has at last come to light and there is some doubt expressed locally as to whether things look so bright as they did around this time last season.

Next Friday October 3rd Central will open its season against the men who have been under the tutoring of Coach Grimes at Riverside high. The ancient battle will be played first this year as Central has a Thanksgiving affray in Florence against Coffee County high.

Following the Decatur game Rogersville will put in an appearance here on October 10th. Rogersville can always be counted upon for a bully outfit and an experienced team. They will put up a pretty battle.

Central journeys to the battle ground of the Saints on October 18th to play St. Bernard at Cullman. St. Bernard boasts one of the best clubs in the northern district and has a decided advantage in playing on a field that is known to them.

The Blount county warriors put in an appearance here on October 24th and is likewise heralded as one of the best in the state. Central is playing three of the best clubs in the territory in succession.

Central makes a trip to Sheffield on October 31st and Sheffield will attempt to put over a decisive victory.

A DAILY PRAYER.—Above all else we pray Thee, that we may not trust to the changing currents of our thoughts, but in Thee, who changes not.

If the aliens were half as harmful as the alienists what a terrible world we would have.

Those who see chaos ahead generally have chaotic minds.

Some youths just will be sissy boys and some girls will be tom-boys.

Republicans did not mind mud slinging, until it was found the mud was made up with oil.

The trouble about opportunity it has such a hard time knocking as often as the knockers.

Coolidge was asked to intervene in the row between Mayor Kendrick, of Philadelphia, and Brigadier General Butler, but if cautious Cal has done so it is not recorded.

Whatever candidate gets Andy Gump's support wins, for as goes that celebrity so goes the nation.

If the politicians continue to talk on the importance of honesty, the ten commandments might be laid on the shelf for a season with no harm done.

The Chinese soon will need no missionaries, thank you. They are conducting a regular civilized warfare, dropping gas bombs on undefended cities, killing non-combatants, children, women and the aged, in fact all innocent bystanders are dying the death just as among the most enlightened nations.

THE INNOCENT SUFFER FOR THE SINS OF THE GUILTY

An Ina minister and a member of his congregation became infatuated with each other and the natural result was misery. Two are dead as a result of the infatuation, the minister's wife and the woman's husband. Both were poisoned, according to the confessions now made by the pair of defendants held in separate jails. The minister and the woman live to face court hearings. The dead, perhaps, are better off than the living.

The saddest feature of the whole sordid situation, however, is the picture of the children of the Hight and Sweetin households. They are deprived of parental guidance; they are deprived of a home; they are deprived of the natural shelter of home-life.

Truly the unfortunate case has brought sorrow to many, but none of those directly effected by the affair has been worse served by the tragic turn of events than have the children, innocent themselves, but suffering along with the guilty.

BABSON SAYS MORE MONEY TO MERCHANTS IS THE THING NEEDED

Using the old proverb, "Trees no do not grow to the skies," in an interview given recently, Robert W. Babson, the world famed statistician, sounds a warning against taxation, and asks if we "are getting tax crazy."

Mr. Babson raises the question as to whether or not state, county and town bonds should continue to be tax free. He says that unless the rate at which such bonds are issued is curtailed the farmers of the country will suffer greatly. It is pointed out that some wise investors, fearing the people might arise and repudiate certain non-taxable bonds are now found investing in taxable corporation bonds.

Mr. Babson said the automobiles as the cause of the sentiment for better roads are directly responsible for the issue of such large numbers of county and town bonds. Babson says automobiles are all right and that they are here to stay, but that the people need to be warned against too much taxation. He says there is always the danger of killing the goose that lays golden eggs. Mr. Babson says we will have permanent roads in the future, but that the people must not be in too great a hurry for them.

It is declared foolish to rake and scrape for the future generation, and at the same time burden it with too heavy debts.

A warning is issued against making roads that will be a big expense to maintain from year to year, Babson saying that those who make roads that cost a great deal to keep up are like the man when he gave the minister $2.00 for marrying him, found the fee was only "fast cost." In including his interview Mr. Babson advises that we begin to spend less money in taxes and more with "local merchants" who the statistician described as "the backbone of American prosperity." The concluding statement of Babson is to the effect that the Babson chart, now showing business at 9 per cent below normal, will reflect a great increase, if merchants get more trade.

OUR WANTS ARE EVER BEFORE US

RIGHT EDUCATION WILL HELP GET THEM
Everything that stands in the way the erection of a Bee Line highway bridge, the establishment of co-operation between the producers and consumers of Morgan county, the proper production of all farms, the right marketing of all farm products more and better roads and a larger drawing power in this community for outside capital, should be gotten out of the way, and quickly.

Education that old standby is a remedy for all human ills should be developed. When the country districts have better schools than have the towns and cities, the country will become to be a more desirable place in which to live. And when people wish to live in the country and desire to stay there, they will soon find many ways and means for making the farmers richer, the production greater, and the sales prices adequate.

Education as to the value of the Bee Line highway bridge is needed. The people need to have put before them just what may be expected in the way of trade and increased business, provided the bridge is erected. When its value to the entire section is grasped by the people generally, provided competent and reliable men are at the head of the enterprise, the money will be forthcoming for the erection of the bridge.

Education as to how to care for what roads we now have, will insure good roads for the future, provided such education causes the people to do whatever is needed to maintain our present roads and build more roads.

Education as to just what is needed to make this community attractive to the outside world is needed. When once the people generally find out what things are needed to draw people of energy and means to this locality they will do those things.

Always until the following things are accomplished, there should be no let up in co-operative effort: A Bee Line highway bridge, co-operative buying and selling between the people of the county, better and more good roads, larger production and the good prices for the farm products, and last, but not least, the acquiring of outside capital, in sufficient amounts, to insure one or more large industries and numbers of the smaller industries.

THE SOLID SOUTH REMAIN SOLID

The Christian Science Monitor is able to read certain signs on the political horizon which are interpreted to mean that the Solid South is gradually growing less solid, in fact is becoming flaccid or aqueous or is reaching some state other than that of fixity and dead moral certainty in politics. The Monitor is always fair and judicial and disinterested in all of its political appraisements and comments and the fact that it has found evidence of "political shifting" in the south is an incident of more than passing significance. The only tangible proof that the Monitor adduces, however, in support of its discovery is that Tennessee went for Harding in 1920 and that there were notable increases in the Republican vote in all of the Southern states. Alabama gave the Republican ticket approximately 75,000 votes four years ago, while North Carolina rolled up the extraordinary total of 232,848 votes for the party of "normalcy." There is nothing in the law or established custom to prevent a southerner from voting the Republican ticket, if that is the way he looks at it. The defections or desertions from the Democratic ranks four years ago were not based on any reasoned course of action or stable conviction, however, but were just a flare-up of emotionalism or resentment growing out of fancied grievances.

There is very small immediate prospect that the "solidity" of the south in politics will be shaken. The southern people are Democrats from principle and few of them have ever been able to discern anything in Republican policies or promises to win their conscientious approval. It has therefore, always been an awkward undertaking to impress a thinking southerner with the wisdom and good policy and patriotic need of his voting the Republican ticket. It is quite probable that the south will continue to give its allegiance to the Democratic party for many years to come. Certainly the Republican record of achievement and the personnel of its leadership do not constitute any very irresistible appeal why thinking, discriminating citizens should line up under the standard of that party.—Selma Times-Journal.

CAUSE OF MOTOR ACCIDENTS

Carelessness is given as the reason for ninety-three per cent of the automobile wrecks in the state of Oregon. This includes speeding, failure to give right of way, reckless driving, cutting corners, driving while intoxicated, driving on left side of street or highway, passing street cars while discharging passengers, inexperience, and other practices resulting in accidents that might have been avoided with proper care and due respect for the law. A large percentage of the more than nine thousand automobile accidents which occurred in Oregon in a year resulted also from wilful violation of the law, of which a surprisingly large number of motor drivers are guilty. These Oregon figures are presumably a fair average to other states.

It is well known that many motor-car drivers take chances, especially at the expense of the other fellow, with the idea of letting the insurance companies take care of the damage. The insurance companies cannot compensate victims of wrecks for death or serious injuries. Safety to life and property rests with the individual driver, and with the pedestrian. Besides, those who assume that attitude are paying the costs, because the more numerous the accidents the higher the insurance rates to everyone, including the careless driver, who carries an insurance policy.

It is costly business, this carelessness in automobile driving, whether or not it includes wilful violation of the law. Not only would heavy fines and prison sentences greatly reduce the number of deaths and injuries from this source, but it would at the same time materially lower the cost of operating motor cars for liability insurance is abnormally and unnecessarily expensive for this very reason. Observance of traffic laws and regard for the safety-first principle is not only more economical, but more humane and protective of the rights of others.—Age-Herald.

Preacher Held On Abduction Charge

(Associated Press)
NOWADA, Okla., Sept. 29.—The Rev. Joseph E. Yates, 40-year-old minister, who faces a charge of abducting a girl, 14 years old, who sang in the choir of his church at Allamore, near here, has been arrested at Ballinger, Texas, according to word received at the sheriff's office here today.

The girl, with whom Rev. Yates was alleged to have left Allamore a week ago today in a motor car, was said to be at the home of her parents at Winters, Texas.

Sheriff W. F. Gillespie said he would leave for Ballinger today to bring the couple here.

Casualties Heavy I Chinese Battle

(Associated Press)
SHANGHAI, Sept. 29.—Hundreds of Chinese soldiers were killed and many others wounded this morning on a six mile front from Nanziang to Malu, when armies of rival military governors, fighting for possession of Shanghai, continued hostilities with marked intensity.

Both sides were denouncing the lines with shrapnel.

Numerous relief stations behind the six mile Nanziang front were filled with wounded today, while scores of others were arriving on stretchers.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, The Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924; and

WHEREAS, Notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor;

NOW THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held to determine the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"Town Creek School District No. 59, Landeraville School District No. 23 and Moulton School District No. 25 in Lawrence County, Alabama, shall each have the right and power by vote of a majority of the qualified electors of such district at an election held for that purpose to levy and collect for the purpose of acquiring, constructing or repairing of school buildings in such district or paying for school buildings already built, a tax of not over five mills in any one year in addition to all other taxes now authorized by law. The election in such district to determine whether or not such tax shall be levied shall be called, held and conducted as now provided by law for calling, holding and conducting of elections to determine whether or not a three-mill district school tax shall be levied and collected."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four.

(Seal) WM. W. BRANDON, Governor.

AMUSEMENTS

Long before Augustus Thomas commenced perpetuating the romance of the South on the stage in a series of plays that began with "Alabama," South of the Mason-Dixon line has been regarded as a section totally unrepresented by cavaliers and tender emotions. The adaptability of the South to strong, swinging narrative finds its justification again in "One Clear Call," the photoplay produced by John M. Stahl which will be shown at the Princess theater Wednesday and Thursday.

Alabama is again the locale and the screen offering presents a more virile story of the Gulf Coast state than anything that has ever been presented upon the stage.

Henry B. Walthall, Milton Sills and Claire Windsor hold the leads in a plot that calls for an unusually large cast of players. Of these Henry Walthall is one of the screen favorites whose triumphs date back to "The Birth of a Nation" and before. Milton Sills is a more recent advent to the select constellation of stardom, but his name is a guarantee of excellency and public favor. Claire Windsor has been playing featured roles in Lois Weber productions and, more recently, in Marshall Neilan's "Pools First."

"One Clear Call," adapted from Frances Nimmo Greene's story, marks the latest of a series of successful productions that John Stahl has made for Associated First National Pictures, Inc., among the former ones being "The Child Thou Gavest Me" and "The Song of Life."

HUGE FISH CAUGHT AT BEAVER LAKE

Horace Johnson Lands Giant Cat Weighing 44 Pounds

Horace Johnson, Louisville and Nashville shop employe and resident of Sixth avenue, West Albany, is counted the leading follower of Isaac Walton in this section following a fish catch he made Saturday night on a trot line at Beaver lake near the Southern Railway bridge. The fish measured six feet and five inches in length, and weighed 44 pounds. Mr. Johnson sold his catch at 14 cents per pound.

The fish was, what is called here a "Shovel Billed Cat." Its great length is accounted for in part by its long shovel like bill that extremity being well over 15 inches long. Mr. Johnson said that his fish was something like what is known as a "channel cat" and was much more slender than "scaley cats" or "mud cats."

Its captor added that when a "shovel bill cat" feeds, it stands directly erect with its head down and its long shovel bill acting to draw food into the mouth. He stated that he had seen such catfish feeding in clear shallow water.

The head of the big fish is being preserved and may be seen at the residence of Mr. Johnson on Sixth avenue West Albany. The mouth of the fish, as examined by several, would easily enclose the head of a large man and then some. A mud cat fish seen here recently was caught on a trot line, weighed over 80 pounds. That fish was much thicker than the "shovel bill" cat. It was much shorter.

Funeral Is Held For Mrs. McGlawn

Funeral services for Mrs. D. S. McGlawn were held Sunday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. J. E. Pritchett a daughter of the deceased, at Priceville, Rev. A. S. Osborn, assisted by Dr. W. P. McGlawn and Rev. A. L. Mathison, conducted the burial service. Interment was made at the family cemetery at Priceville.

Mrs. McGlawn expired at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Price on Saturday after an illness of some weeks. She was a respected member of the community and an ardent churchworker. Her Christian interest and Christian ways will be missed in the community that loved her.

The deceased is survived by her husband the Reverend D. S. McGlawn and seven children; Mrs. J. E. Price, Mrs. Tom Price, Geo. F. and J. T. McGlawn of Los Angeles, Cal., and Nashville, Tenn., Mrs. C. A. Leopard Athens, Mrs. W. G. Gaston, Las Vegas, New Mexico, and Mrs. Ollie Hall of Looma, Tenn.

All the loved ones of the deceased attended the burial service but Mrs. Gaston.

MEETING CLOSES

Rev. C. E. Otey, evangelist, closed a ten days' meeting at the First Christian church Sunday night. On Sunday Rev. Big Reward Offered For Missing Youth

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The father of Franklin Roshek, 14 year old school boy, who has been missing since last Tuesday, announced today he would give a liberal reward for information that might lead to the finding of his son.

Throughout the investigation of the youth's disappearance, the father, Frank Roshek, a wealthy business man, had believed the boy was not kidnapped but that he ran away from home. The police, however, suspected that he was kidnapped and sent out a general alarm.

John J. Riley, a dock worker, is under arrest on a charge of suspicion of having kidnapped the youth. The police say Riley answered the description of a hunchback man, known as "Hunchback Riley" who was seen talking to the boy before he disappeared.

Despite numerous telegrams informing the police that a boy of young Roshek's description had passed through towns in New York and Pennsylvania, the police have been unable to find any clue to aid in the search.

The Puzzling Problem Made Face About Hugh Grantland.

HUGH GRANTLAND in the pictures of Hugh Grantland, wondering if I could find in them any tiny clue to the strange thing confronting me.

I remembered my first impression of Hugh Grantland, when he—a tall, rangy youth in an army officer's uniform—rescued me from the brutal discourtesy of a trolley conductor. I had marked then the odd combination of boyish shyness and awkwardness with veteran ability and resourcefulness which he possessed. But it was the thrilling spy-hunting adventure into which we were thrown and his spectacular rescue of me following, that had intensified my appreciation of his unusual qualities.

"Mama, Where Are You?"

Then I had realized that he was the Captain Grantland—it was later that his major's commission came—hero of unnumbered exploits in France where he had gone to join the Foreign Legion in the first days of the World War, and subject of many a newspaper feature because of his odd history.

Born of wealthy parents, his childhood had been as restricted in some ways as it was indulgent in others. He never had been allowed to go to school, had been sent to college directly from an elderly tutor's hands, and in his second year he had been expelled for some reason that had never been divulged by the college authorities. His mother's heart had broken, his father's had been turned to stone.

Implicable he turned the boy away from home, and from that day to one a number of years later when a quiet youth entered the service as a day laborer of a rival railroad to the one his father headed, there was a hiatus in Hugh Grantland's life as he never had explained, and which he never had explained, and which he never had explained.

His rise in the service had been phenomenal, and though his father could keep the boy away from his mother's deathbed, he could not keep her private fortune, no inconsiderable one, from going to him.

Hugh Grantland had given up both wealth and his high position when he went to the war, and though the wealth remained, he never had gone back to the railroad, choosing rather to serve his country in ways that were as unobtrusive as they were effective.

Did the answer to his odd career lie in that service?

Was he perhaps paying penalty for his patriotism?

But he speaks with the sensation of suddenly being summoned from sleep that I heard my small son's voice calling me from the corridor:

"Mama, Mama! Where are you?"

But this hypothesis meant that he really faced death, as his letter had said, was perhaps even now out of the world, and he held, such heights and depths of experience for him—the room suddenly seemed to grow colder as I realized what a blank in my life Hugh Grantland's going would mean.

Except for Lillian I have no stancher friend, and I shivered at the thought that I might never more know the sense of safety which had been mine because of his unobtrusive watchful care of me.

Which was the true answer to the mystery of this bizarre letter? Had Hugh Grantland gone mad or were they true—these almost unbelievable things he had written to me?

I felt as if I were facing a blank wall with the inquiry, and feverishly I turned again to my memory.

THE HOME KITCHEN

Here Are Some Big
Secrets of Making
Delicious Sauces

By WANDA BARTON

SAUCE making is an art. A good sauce often redeems a plain dinner and makes it an event. A sauce must be smooth and perfectly made and served hot or cold as called for—never half and half. Perfect seasoning is absolutely essential. If the sauce must be kept hot until served, the seasoning should be in a vessel of hot water to hold it at the right temperature. If cold it should be chilled in the ice-box and offered at the last minute. A small double boiler is excellent for sauce-making and should be kept for this purpose.

Frontenac Sauce.
This is for a fish salad. Mash the yolks of four hard-boiled eggs with four anchovy filets. When blended add a half cupful of olive oil, a little at a time, a saltspoonful of paprika, a teaspoonful of minced celery leaves, a tablespoonful of minced chives, a teaspoonful of onion juice, a saltspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar, two teaspoonfuls of well-washed capers, and a teaspoonful of sharp pepper sauce. Mix well until perfectly blended. If the sauce seems a little too thick a tiny bit more vinegar may be added.

Olive Sauce.
For stuffed steak. Put a large can of tomatoes into a saucepan with a couple of stalks of celery, a sliced onion, a few stalks of celery, a sliced bud of garlic, a few sprays of parsley, half a bay leaf, pepper, salt, a slice of bacon, a half teaspoonful of curry powder, and a dessertspoonful of sugar. Cook gently for a half hour stirring frequently, then strain through a fine sieve. Reheat and thicken with brown roux to the consistency of cold honey. When done add a small cupful of olives cut in rings. Serve hot turned over the steak, or in a hot sauceboat.

Cider Sauce.
For boiled or baked ham. Take a pint of brown sauce, made exactly the same as the olive sauce, and add to it a half pint of cider and cook steadily until reduced to the proper thickness.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT A House and a Home

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

THERE are houses and houses, and in these houses there's sometimes a home. "A dwelling house" is the phrase, I think, used in describing many places, and it is an apt phrase. Many houses never become homes, but I have known a real home in two tiny rooms. It is the soul of the dweller that makes a real home in two tiny rooms. It is the soul of the dweller that makes the home.

It is hard to tell exactly what it is that makes a home, you may say, yet we all know it the moment we breathe the atmosphere of a real home. Certainly it isn't the cooking, and, by the way, there is more than one meaning to "home cooking." Good home cooking is the best in the world, but as the leaves of the tree must be counted back cooking of all sorts.

There is an old saying that the devil inspires the cooks of the world. This may be true of professionals, but even the inspiration of the evil spirit is lacking from those who make soggy pies and puddings, and cook vegetables the wrong way. No, there can be a good home even with not so very good cooking. If the Mother Heart is there, there's the makings of a home.

Inspiration Is Needed

I remember in childish days a certain Aunt Mary who was the delight of the hearts of all children who knew her. It was at her home where we most enjoyed life. The stories she told us, the songs she sang to us, the wreaths of flowers she showed us how to make, and all the charming lore of nature she taught us. How to make curls out of candlestick stems and to tell time by the dandelion gone to seed, how to make dolls out of poppies—a hundred things she told us in the gardens and fields.

But when it came to sitting down at Aunt Mary's table, things weren't so fine, so the grown ups said. We children never noticed any shortcomings connected with Aunt Mary's housekeeping. She had us so closely gathered up in her heart of hearts that we missed nothing in the material world when we were in her presence.

It is such women, not at all ideal housewives, who make ideal homes. I suppose this is heterodoxy of the most serious kind, for in these days of efficiency, every woman is urged first of all to have a spick and span house and a table so inviting and appetizing that her husband is always home to dinner as a matter of course and all the neighbors are compiling notes of recipes from her books.

Efficiency is a great thing everywhere. It must not be spoken of lightly, nevertheless it has not so much to do, after all, with a home.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl twenty-one years of age and have several young men friends.

But there is one that I care more for than all the rest.

He always waxes very nice to me, and called on me often. But the last time we were out we had a little misunderstanding, and he stopped calling.

But he speaks well of me to my friends, and when I meet him he speaks to me but doesn't ask for a date.

Now what can I do to resume his friendship, or do you think he has another girl and doesn't care for me anymore?

HEART BROKEN.
H EART BROKEN: You might take a chance and ask him to come to see you some evening when you are having other friends visit you. If he does not accept your invitation, you will know definitely that he no longer cares for your friendship.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and have been going with a young man two years my senior. I love this young man very much and he seems to care a great deal for me. People have told him my parents object to having him visit my home and he has stopped coming. What is the best way to make him believe he is welcome to my home? My parents don't object to him coming.

He recently went with a girl who has a bad reputation. How can I gain his love and keep him from going with this girl? I don't ask him to give up his friendship with other girls because we aren't engaged, but I don't want him to go with her because she has a bad name.

—Is it correct for me to visit his home as his sister and mother have invited me several times?
KATINKA.

KATINKA: 1.—You might write and invite him to come to see you some time when you are entertaining other friends. If your parents are cordial to the young man he ought to be able to tell for himself whether they welcome his visits or not. I do not think it advisable for you to say anything to him directly about going out with the other girl. He might think you meddlesome or even jealous. But you could tell him indirectly what you think of other young men who go around with girls of questionable reputation. If he knows of this girl's reputation, he will in all probability understand what you mean, and if he does not know about it, it would be best for you to let him find out for himself.

2.—Yes.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

YOUR HEALTH

Why So Many Persons
Often Have Sore Throats

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WHY do so many people have sore throats? Almost every day you meet a friend who is complaining of one. Why is it?

To understand the frequency of this ailment you must know something about the anatomy of your throat. You must know first that the main supports of the neck are the backbone behind and the muscles of the sides and front. These muscles are in play all the time you are awake and under some conditions while you are asleep.

On each side of the throat is a tonsil. This may be a well-behaved and normal tonsil, or it may be a great big, sponge-like structure punctured with pockets and fissures.

Lining and covering all the irregularities and surfaces of the throat is the mucous membrane. Like mucous membrane everywhere else it is found in the body, the covering of the throat has its glands.

These glands are tiny things, but they are very necessary for our comfort. Some of them supply a watery fluid and others furnish the thicker mucus. When they work as they should the tissues are kept moist and slippery, so that the throat feels right, and when you have occasion to swallow the morsel of food slips easily along into the gullet.

If you open your mouth and look in the mirror, you can see the back of your throat, provided your tongue is not unruly. When the tissues are normal, the mucous membrane is seen to be lined with a pink membrane. This region is known to the doctors as the back pharyngeal wall.

It is of interest to all human beings because, under certain conditions, the glands of this portion of the mucous membrane may become inflamed and swollen. Then there are red, pimply-like elevations on the pharyngeal wall. These are spoken of as "enlarged follicles" and, when they are present, the throat is sore, and swallowing may be extremely painful. Pressure of any sort on these inflamed follicles is painful.

Enlargement of the pharyngeal follicles is always associated with mouth breathing, and often with excessive use of the voice. On account of the latter association, this condition is often spoken of as "preacher's sore throat."

Whenever the pharyngeal part of the throat is involved in acute inflammation the pain is apt to be described as a "raw and scraped" feeling. When it is at its worst the throat feels as if it had been peeled and salt had been rubbed into the raw surface.

First, there is an uncomfortable sensation which may not be so bad as to keep you awake the first night. By the second night the pain is at its worst and you may not sleep at all. By the third evening you are better and after four or five days the trouble disappears.

It is pretty safe to say that such attacks as I have just described are due to indiscretion or neglect. You have to be "run down" to get this kind of a sore throat.

Perhaps you have spent several nights on a sleeping car or in some other badly-ventilated place. You may have exposed yourself by riding in the face of raw winds or dust-laden air. You may have smoked excessively.

Neglect of the stomach and bowels is another important factor. Over-eating and particularly the presence of constipation must be regarded as possible causes.

To-morrow I shall tell you more about sore-throat and what to do about it.

Answers to Health Questions

CURIOUS. Q.—What would you advise for dandruff?
A.—Will washing the hair once a week injure it?
A.—What will keep the hair light?

A.—For full particulars on this subject, kindly send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.
A.—It is better to shampoo the hair once every two weeks unless it is excessively oily and greasy.
A.—Nothing but a bleach, which is not advisable.

RUTH W. Q.—What is the correct weight of a girl, seventeen years of age, height five feet, six inches?
A.—Are fresh cherries fattening? Also peaches? How can I reduce my weight?

A.—About 110 pounds.
A.—Fresh cherries and peaches are somewhat fattening. For full particulars on the treatment of weight reduction send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and restate your question.
G. J. Q.—Will a window open in the front of a person and one directly in back cause a draft?
A.—Yes, this may cause a draft.

N. D. W. Q.—Are salt water baths—in the ocean—beneficial or harmful to a person suffering from insomnia? How can this condition be cured?
A.—Salt water baths are beneficial. For full particulars on the treatment of insomnia send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and restate your question.

S. F. Q.—I have been suffering considerably with my feet. I have a hammer-toe. What would you advise me to do?
A.—See an orthopedist for an examination and advice concerning treatment. He will advise you whether or not it will be necessary to remove the toe.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medical, hygienic and scientific subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it cannot be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally in a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Be Natural If You'd Be Beautiful

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

WHETHER or not the natural type of beauty is the fad of the moment is a question much discussed at the present time. This does not refer to personality and manner, for those questions have been decided long ago. The woman who swoons on the least provocation has long since passed from the scene. It is much smarter to be engagingly natural and to let our manners be a natural expression of our feelings.

But the problem of complexion is one which needs more discussion. It has not been so many moons since the face served more or less as a mask, a mask on which the wearer expressed herself with the aid of paint and powder and lip-stick.

While these things still hold their important place, I must say that they are used today to affect a different purpose. They are coming more and more to be used in the cause of naturalness. That is, they bring out the points of true beauty, they accept the values which have already been placed there by nature.

All this must be brought about by exercising the greatest care possible in our choice of cosmetics. If you are an up-to-date person, you will follow this cue for all it is worth.

For instance, when you select a face powder choose one that blends in with the general tone of your complexion. If you happen to have a naturally creamy skin, or one bordering on tan, don't buy white powder. Don't buy it even if you have a great desire to be pale and interesting, for this powder is not natural to you.

On the other hand if you are pale and want to be darker-skinned, don't think that deep powder will successfully bring about the transformation you wish. Be natural and wear the powder that comes nearest being just the tint of your skin.

The same rule applies to lip-stick and to rouge if you must use them. Choose these with particular consideration for your natural coloring. If your lips are not naturally a deep red, don't buy a lip-stick that is blatantly red. Choose one that simply accents the shade of color that your lips already possess.

The natural complexion is a real work of art, a French beauty specialist tells me that American women have particularly good natural complexions, and that this very gift seems to make them careless in their treatment of their complexions. He says a blonde will often choose for her delicate skin powder that only a brunette should use.

Remember that there are dozens of powder shades and if you search with care you can find exactly your shade.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30.

Although this promises to be a very lively day, according to the prevailing lunar as well as mutual aspects, yet it may be one calling for much wisdom and discretion. The disposition may be aggressive and resourceful, but will likely encounter many disagreeable situations. The money and business should be kept well under control and all desire for change or travel should be suppressed until a more fortunate time. The health should be kept in order and social pleasures should be discreet.

Those whose birthday it is may have a lively year, but one of trouble-some situations. Keep the business and money well in hand, avoid travel and change and attend to the health. Also be not too indulgent in pleasure and society. A child born on this day although being lively, enterprising and resourceful may encounter many difficulties and temptations in life.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election to be held for the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924; and WHEREAS, Notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, and in the manner, form and place required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"Article—, Section 1. The County of Walker, State of Alabama, shall have power to levy and collect a special county road tax not exceeding fifty cents on each one hundred dollars worth of taxable property in such county in addition to that now authorized or that may hereafter be authorized for public road purposes; provided, that of such tax, the time it is to continue and the purpose thereof shall have been first submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of the county, and voted for by a majority of those voting at such election. Section 2. Twenty-five per centum of all moneys derived from property lying within municipalities and arising from the tax proposed herein, shall be paid to such municipality and shall, by it, be expended for upkeep of its streets. Section 3. The Court of County Commissioners, board of revenue, or other governing body of said county, may, or upon written petition of ten per centum of the qualified voters of Walker County, shall call and submit said election provided for and authorized by section one hereof to the qualified electors of Walker County either at the time of the general election or at a special election called for that purpose; provided, that said election shall be called and held in accordance with the law now or that may be enacted governing county bond elections, and in conformity with the general election laws of the State."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-Four.

New Method Heals Pyorrhea

Ten Year Bad Case Completely Healed In a Short Time Writes Florida Woman

Faced with the loss of her teeth, after 10 years' suffering, Mrs. M. J. Travis, an esteemed resident of Jacksonville declares she finally saved her teeth by a simple home treatment: "worth its weight in gold," using her own words: "After having pyorrhea for 10 years and my mouth is now healed. Before I found out differently, I was told there was no relief and had yielded to the loss of six fine solid teeth. Then I discovered Moore's pyorrhea treatment. Three days after starting its use, the soreness left my gums; my teeth began to tighten. Now my teeth are clean, my breath sweet, and my mouth completely healed."

The experience of Mrs. Travis is duplicated in hundreds of other cases. If you have pyorrhea—or threatened with pyorrhea your teeth are in danger. Quick and effective treatment is necessary. You can test, without money risk, the treatment used by Mrs. Travis. Simply write the Moreham Co., 111 Gateway Station, Kansas City, Mo. Under their guarantee of refund send two dollars. Or, pay postman the $2 with few cents postage. Use the treatment 7 days. Then if you are not wholly satisfied, write to that effect and your $2 will be returned at once. —Adv.

SYNOPSIS

Sir Oliver Tressilian, renowned for his exploits on the Spanish Main, is betrothed to Rosamund Godolphin, but the marriage is opposed by Rosamund's brother, Peter, who takes every opportunity to manifest his antagonism. A stinging insult finally provokes Oliver to threaten to kill him, but the thought of Rosamund deters him. In a quarrel over a woman Oliver's young half-brother, Lionel, that night kills Peter in self-defense, and is himself wounded. Lionel extracts a promise from his brother to keep the affair a secret. Smugly fastens upon Oliver, who unavailingly protests his innocence to Rosamund and her guardian, Sir John Killigrew. They tell him a trail of blood, undoubtedly that of the murderer, was found to lead from the dead body to his doorway. This, however, actually establishes his innocence, for he bears no mark of recent wound. He lays his proof before the justices, who, convinced of his innocence, draw up a document to that effect and give it to him to hold in readiness until needed. Between pricking conscience and fear that his brother will reveal the truth, Lionel becomes so distraught that Oliver suggests a sea expedition for both of them.

CHAPTER VI (continued)

Lionel looked up, his eye brightening. Then a thought occurred to him; a thought so mean that again the color flooded into his cheeks for he was ashamed by it. Yet it came. If he sailed with Oliver, men would say that he was a partner in the guilt attributed to his brother.

He realized to the full the contemptible quality of his thought and hated himself for conceiving it. But he could not shake off its dominion. It was stronger than his will.

His brother observing this hesitation, and misreading it, drew him to the fireside and made him sit.

"Listen," he said, as he dropped into the chair opposite. "There is a fine ship standing in the roads below, off Smithwick. You'll have seen her. Her master is a desperate adventurer named Jasper Leigh who is to be found any afternoon in the ale-house at Penycumwick. I know him of old, and he and his ship are to be acquired. He is ripe for any venture, from scuttling Spanish galleons to trading in slaves, and so that the price be high enough we may buy him body and soul. His is a stomach that refuses nothing, so there be money in the venture. So here is ship and master ready found; the rest I will provide—the crew, the munitions, the armament, and by the end of March we shall see the Lisard dropping astern. What do you say, Lal? 'Tis surely better than to sit moping here in this place of gloom."

"I'll—I'll think of it," said Lionel, but so listlessly that all Sir Oliver's quickening enthusiasm perished again at once, and no more was said of the venture.

But Lionel did not altogether reject the motion. If on the one hand he was repelled by it, on the other he was attracted almost despite himself. He went so far daily over to Penycumwick, and there he made the acquaintance of that hardy and scarred adventurer of whom Sir Oliver had spoken, and listened to the marvels the fellow had to tell—many of them too marvelous to be true—of hazards upon distant seas.

"Jasper laid a long finger against his nose and his eyes grew cunning."

But one day early in March Master Jasper Leigh had a tale of another kind for him, news that dispelled from Lionel's mind all interest in the captain's ventures on the Spanish Main. The seaman had followed the departing Lionel to the door of the little inn and stood by his stirrup after he had got to horse.

"A word in your ear, good Master Tressilian," said he. "D'ye know what is being concerted here against your brother?"

"Against my brother?"

"Aye—in the matter of the killing of Master Peter Godolphin last Christmas. Seeing that the justices would not move of themselves, some folk ha' petitioned the Lieutenant of Cornwall to command them to grant a warrant for Sir Oliver's arrest on a charge of murder. But the justices ha' refused to be driven by his lordship, answering that they hold their office direct from the queen and that in such a matter they are answerable to none but her Grace. And now I hear that a petition be gone to London to the queen herself, begging her to command her justices to perform their duty or quit their office."

Lionel drew a sharp breath, and with dilating eyes regarded the mariner, but made him no answer. Jasper laid a long finger against his nose and his eyes grew cunning.

"I thought I'd warn you, sir, so as ye may bid Sir Oliver look to himself. 'Tis a fine seaman and fine seaman be none so plentiful."

Lionel drew his purse from his pocket and without so much as looking into its contents dropped it into the seaman's ready hand, with a muttered word of thanks. He rode home in terror almost. It was come. The blow was about to fall, and his brother at last would be forced to speak. At Penarrow a fresh shock awaited him. He learned from old Nicholas that Sir Oliver was from home, that he had ridden over to Godolphin Court.

The instant conclusion prompted by Lionel's terror was that already the news had reached Sir Oliver and that he had instantly taken action; for he could not conceive that his brother should go to Godolphin Court upon any other business.

But his fears on that score were very idle. Sir Oliver, unable longer to endure the present state of things, had ridden over to lay before the council that proof with which he had taken care to furnish himself. He could do so at last without any fear of hurting Lionel. His journey, however, had been entirely fruitless. She had refused pointblank to receive him, and for all that with a humility entirely foreign to him he had induced a servant to return to her with a most urgent message, yet had he been denied. He returned stricken to Penarrow, there to find his brother awaiting him in a passion of impatience.

"Well?" Lionel greeted him. "What will you do now?"

Sir Oliver looked at him from under brows that scowled darkly in reflection of his thoughts.

"Do now? Of what do you talk?" quoth he.

"Have you not heard?" And Lionel told him the news.

Sir Oliver stared long at him when he had done, then his lips tightened and he smote his brow.

"So?" he cried. "Would that be why she refused to see me? Did she conceive that I went perhaps to plead? Could she think that? Could she?"

He crossed to the fire-place and stirred the logs with his boot angrily.

"Oh! 'Twere too unworthy. Yet of a certainty 'tis her doing, this."

"What shall you do?" insisted Lionel, unable to repress the question that was uppermost in his mind, and his voice shook.

"Do?" Sir Oliver looked at him over his shoulder. "Prick this bubble, by Heaven! Make an end of it for them, confound them and cover them with shame."

He said it roughly, angrily, and Lionel recoiled, deeming that roughness and anger aimed at himself. He sank into a chair, his knees loosened by his sudden fear.

"You—you will tell them the truth?" he said, in small, quavering voice.

Sir Oliver turned and considered him more attentively.

"A God's name, Lal, what's in thy mind now?" he asked, almost roughly. "Tell them the truth? Why, of course—but only as it concerns myself. You're not supposing that I shall tell them it was you? You'll not be accounting me capable of that?"

"What other way is there?"

Sir Oliver explained the matter. The explanation brought Lionel relief. But this relief was ephemeral. Further reflection presented a new fear to him. It came to him that if Sir Oliver cleared himself of necessity his own implication must follow.

Had he but gone with these fears of his to his brother, or had he but been able to abate them sufficiently to allow reason to prevail, he must have been brought to understand how much further they carried him than was at all justified by probability. Oliver would have shown him this, would have told him that with the collapsing of the charge against himself no fresh charge could be leveled against any there, that no scrap of suspicion had ever attached to Lionel or ever could. But Lionel dared not seek his brother in this matter. In his heart he was ashamed of his fears; in his heart he knew himself for a craven. He realized to the full the hideousness of his selfishness, and yet, as before, he was not strong enough to conquer it. In short, his love of himself was greater than his love of his brother, or of twenty brothers.

Hungary Seeks Executioner

With Set of Steady Nerves
BUDAPEST—Although ruthless cutting down of expenses has emptied many a government office, and civil servants still in municipal employ cling tightly to their jobs, the Hungarian government has been obliged to advertise in order to fill one vacancy that of hangman.

"A young sturdy man with strong nerves," is asked for to replace Michael Bali, who is retiring after 30 years service and means to live in ease with his large family on the small estate he has purchased at Fad, near Budapest out of his earnings. Bali is suffering from rheumatism in his right hand, and feels it is time to make way for a younger man. He is famous for his gentle treatment and compassion for the condemned, and his last consolation always consisted in a whisper "It does not hurt and will soon be over."

"America" Sung In Belfast
BELFAST—For the first time in the history of Belfast "My Country 'Tis of Thee" was sung publicly here. The occasion was a luncheon tendered by the City Harbor Board in honor of the officers of the United States Destroyer Billingsley in connection with that vessel's first visit to Belfast.
